

"OLD MAIDS ASSOCIATION"Entertainment to Be Repeated Friday Night at Silverstreet.—A Great Success.

"The Old Maids Association" which was rendered at Silverstreet last Friday evening by local talent, was so much enjoyed that the strong pressure has been brought to bear that it be repeated on March 6th. The young people who got up the entertainment have decided to yield to this request, and the entertainment will be repeated on Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the school auditorium at Silverstreet.

The same admission will be charged and the money will go to payment on the piano which was purchased for the school. Even with the bad weather last Friday, the receipts were about $30.

A Tell-the-Truth Editor.

A western editor, who believes in telling the truth printed the following:

"Willie Shortlike and Annie Bloomers were married at the church last evening. The church was very prettily decorated with flowers and potted plants, borrowed promiscuously from over town from people who didn't want to lend them. The decorating was done under protest by some of the members of the church, who were asked to do so by the bride, and couldn't well refuse. The ladies are of the opinion that if the couple were so bent on having a stylish wedding they should have been willing to have paid some one to chase all over the town for a day getting flowers together and then taking them home again.

"The bride wore a handsome Parisian gown (made at home), and the groom was decked out in a $10 hand-me-down, borrowed for the occasion. Sallie Potts was maid of honor and the consensus of opinion was that she was two to one better than the bride. The young couple took the morning train for St. Louis, where they will spend more money in a few days than Willie can earn in three months.

"Willie says that now he's married, he's going to settle down. Some of our merchants think it would have been better if he had settled up first. The groom gets a salary of $27 a month, which is about the allowance Annie has been used to for pin money. We wish, for Willie's sake, that the old saying that it takes no more to support two than one wasn't a lie.

"The bride sent us a shoe box full of a conglomeration of stuff supposed to be cake. If this is a sample of Annie's cooking we feel sorry for Willie. Our janitor's dog fell heir to the cake and now he's lying in the cold, cold ground. But this wedding is none of our funeral. If Willie and Annie are satisfied, we've got no kick coming."

His Only Thought.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat.
Horace Trumbauer, the Philadelphia architect, who is par-excellence, the architect of the millionaire, said, at the annual outing of the Associated Architectural societies at Englewood:

"The palaces of our millionaires are undoubtedly the most beautiful in the world. The American millionaire has, as a rule, an esthetic sense. He isn't like Cashley, of Chillicothe.

"Cashley, last winter, visited the Riviera. Arriving at the Palace hotel, in Nice, he said to the clerk:

"Gimme the dearest room in the house, young feller."

"Yes, sir," said the clerk. "And would you prefer, sir, a sea view or a mountain view—a view of the Mediterranean, or a view of the Maritime Alps?"

"Oh, I don't care nothin' about that," said Cashley. "The dearest room in the house, young feller—that's what I want."

SLAYS RESTAURANT OWNER.

Walter B. Brooks, of Savannah, Kills Charles Barbour, Citing "Unwritten Law."

Savannah, Ga., Feb. 28.—Walter B. Brooks, a member of the Savannah police force, this morning at 8:45 o'clock went to the room of Charles Barbour, a well known restaurant proprietor, and shot him three times. One bullet entered Barbour's abdomen. The wounds proved fatal, Barbour dying tonight. Brooks is held on a charge of murder.

Brooks claimed Barbour had invaded his home.

The dead man was a lodger in the home of Mrs. R. E. Stratton. Brooks was admitted to the house by Mrs. Stratton, who, ignorant of the purpose of his visit, showed him to Barbour's room. When the occupant awakened by the knock upon his door, answered the summons, Brooks began firing at him with a revolver.

Barbour insisted that Brooks shot the wrong man. He claimed not to know Mrs. Brooks.

Brooks surrendered to the police.

CORPORATION IS ALL RIGHTSo Says Vice President For Georgia.—Apply Able to Take Care of Obligations.

It was published in the daily papers a few days ago that Southern States Cotton company had been forced into involuntary bankruptcy. This is the company that was represented by Mr. Aldrich in buying cotton from the farmers and giving script for part payment and many of the farmers of Newberry have sold cotton to Mr. Aldrich as the representative of this company and of course felt an interest in the public statement that the company had gone into bankruptcy. Mr. J. F. Stephens of Silverstreet has handed The Herald and News a telegram from the vice president of Georgia with the request for its publication.

The following is a copy of the telegram:

Dallas, Texas, Feb. 29 1914.

Story sent afternoon papers Friday by Associated Press was fair and complete. Some dirty sheets cut story so as to make it appear that corporation was threatened with bankruptcy.

This work of Barretors and Jackals. One petitioner bankruptcy bought B. script with worthless check to qualify himself.

Another petitioner withdrew, claiming he had been misled.

Total claims about $3,000, all B. script which is not due and was issued in accordance with contract and plan of corporation.

Stockholders meeting here Friday enthusiastically endorsed management, operation and condition of corporation.

Petitioners not compelled to make bond and their paper simply lies in clerk's office of court.

This is the outcome—discharge general manager for incompetency on boasting to directors meeting, he would get even.

Identical case thrown out State court week ago as groundless.

Mrs. Emma Hattiwanger DeLoach.

Mrs. Emma Hattiwanger DeLoach died at her home at Ninety Six on Saturday morning February 28th, at the advanced age of 79 years. She was sick for only about a week. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Joe Tolbert, and one sister, Mrs. Jacob Luther Aull, who lives in Greenwood county near Dyson.

Mrs. Aull is the only survivor of a very large family of brothers and sisters, all of whom, however, lived to a ripe old age. Mrs. Aull is now four score years, but in the enjoyment of good health and seems to be as active and energetic as if she were not more than three score years.

Mr. Jacob Luther Aull, her husband, is also the only survivor of a large family of brothers and sisters, who lived the allotted three score years, and many of them three score and ten and some four score. Mr. William M. Werts, who died a few months ago, was a half brother of Mr. Aull, and more than four score years of age at the time of his death.

Mrs. DeLoach had lived at Ninety Six for a good many years. Her life was quiet and unobtrusive, and her disposition gentle and kind. She was devoted to her family and kind to her neighbors. The funeral service was held at the residence at Ninety Six at 12 o'clock on Sunday, conducted by Rev. Mr. Dibble of the Methodist church. Interment at Ninety Six cemetery.

The pall bearers were her nephews.

Justifiable Kisses.Exchange.

Here is one that was told by Congressman George L. Gorman, of Illinois, the other afternoon when the talk topic turned to humorous situations in a court room.

One day a young man was haled into court for stealing kisses from a pretty girl, and eventually the fair one was put on the stand to tell her story.

"I understand you say," said the lawyer for the young man in cross-examination, "that the defendant here kissed you against your will."

"Yes, sir," was the prompt and blushing reply of the fair girl, "and he kissed me more than once too."

"I see," calmly returned the legal light. "And is it not true that you also kissed the defendant?"

"Yes, sir," admitted the pretty one, "but I did it in self-defense."

I am delighted to report the interest and cooperation shown by the teachers, pupils and parents, the hospitality of the people in the communities visited has been unstinted. With such material as we have enrolled I see no reason why this work should not redound to the benefit of all concerned and make Newberry county the banner county of the State.

Let me urge all the members to secure club seed from the depository whose name was given to you by me, and get them in suitable hot beds according to directions as soon as the weather will permit. Do not forget that accurate records of all transactions must be kept.

Below I beg to append directions for making the hot bed.

Fannie Holloway,
Organizer of Girls' Clubs.

Making a Hot Bed.

The hot bed may be made as follows: Select a well drained location, where the bed will be sheltered, preferably on the south side of a building or fence. Make an excavation 18 inches deep the size your bed is to be. Throw in fresh horse manure and pack by tramping. The manure heap should be about even with the surface of the ground or 18 inches deep. The manure furnishes the heat to start the plants. Put on top the manure four or five inches of a good garden loam, which has not grown any diseased plants, and cover the bed with glass hot bed sash. If sash can not be secured, canvas may be substituted for the glass. The temperature will run high for a few days, but no seeds should be planted until the temperature falls to about 80 degree F. which will require three or four days.

A bed made about five feet nine inches wide and about six feet long will be plenty large to grow plants for a tenth acre garden. This size bed will take two hot bed sashes which measure three feet by six feet. The frame to support the sash should be about 15 to 18 inches high at the back and six inches lower in front in order to drain off the water. The slope should be toward the south.

During bright days the bed will heat very quickly and it will be necessary to ventilate by raising the sash on the opposite side from the wind. Toward evening close the sash in order to get the bed warm before night. Water the bed in the morning on bright days as watering in the evening or on cloudy days will have a tendency to injure the plants and increase the danger of freezing and damping off. Ventilate the bed after watering in order to dry off the plants.

Before the plants are set out they should be hardened off and this can be done by transferring to a cold frame by removing the hot bed sash during the days in mild weather. As the plants become hardened the sash can be kept off at nights when there is no danger of frost. This hardening off process must be done gradually to prevent any serious check to growth.

If it is impossible to make a hot bed the plants can be started in shallow boxes in the house. (Set shallow boxes from a store and fill with good, rich soil and sow the seed as described for the hot bed. Bore two or three boxes in the bottom of the box for drainage. Keep the box as near a window as possible and at living room temperature. Close attention should be given to watering as the air of a living room is usually dry and will soon dry out the soil. The plants must be developed in the light or they will be weak and spindling. They should be transplanted to other boxes or to a cold frame, which is made in the same way as the hot bed except that the nature is left out and canvass may be substituted for the glass sash. In the far South it will not be necessary to have a hot bed; the cold frame will be sufficient.

A Strong Man's Job.

Philadelphia Telegraph.

Some time ago a colored man applied for work at a building operation and was taken on. The first duty assigned him was carrying planks from one corner to another. The planks weighed a whole lot more than a heavy conscience, and as the colored man wearily trudged along he became exceedingly thoughtful.

"Look heah, boss," he remarked, finally, going over to the foreman, "did I tell yo' what mah name was when I started in to work?"

"Dat's jes' what I did, boss. Dat's jes' what I did," was the smiling rejoinder of the colored party. "But I was afraid dat yo' done gone made a mistake an' fink it was Samson."

Obliging.

New York Globe.

A teacher in a tenement district hurried from the school to find the mother of a pupil who had been taken ill.

"Can you show me where Mrs. Angelo Scandale lives?" she inquired of a cherub transplanted from the sunny south to a dark, sunless alley.

"Yes, teach," I show you," and a willing sticky hand dragged her on with such speed as to make her stumble over an Italian dame seated on the threshold.

After the teacher's breathless flight toward the clouds the little hand stopped tugging.

"There where Mees Scandale live," indicated the horizontal arm and finger, "but she downstairs sittin on the step," finished the smiling lips.
